

MORNING APPEAL

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 23

BUDDS FINE WORK.

THE LIKE OF IT HAS SCARCELY BEEN SEEN IN AMERICAN POLITICS.

To an extent rarely if ever equaled in American politics Mr. Budd succeeded in rallying to his banner the most opposite political factions, and the result is not without its amusing features.

Thus, for instance, while standing on a platform which professed to be opposed to the American Protective Association, and to the support of which and the candidates it represented the Catholic vote was asked to rally from one end of the State to the other, Mr. Budd's election is now claimed as a signal triumph by the American Patriot, the organ of the A. P. A., which placed his name at the head of the "Independent American Ticket," which the Patriot claims was elected by A. P. A. votes. The Patriot says in its headlines: "A. P. A. Triumphs in City and State—Forty-seven of the A. P. A. Ticket Elected," and places Mr. Budd's name at the head of the forty-seven. Commenting editorially on the election the Patriot says:

The recent election reveals the actual strength of the Roman Catholic vote in this city (San Francisco). After the most unscrupulous and fiendish effort on the part of the Pope's heelers, the sum total of votes that they were able to muster was less than nineteen thousand—or less than one-third of the entire vote of the city.

And the Patriot adds:

The papers and the politicians now agree that the American Protective Association holds the balance of power in almost every city and State in the Union; and that few men can hope for political success who do not receive the endorsement of the Association, and that to obtain such he must be a loyal American.

The Monitor, the Catholic organ, is equally as delighted as its opponent with Mr. Budd's election, and says:

The election of the head of the Democratic ticket is a magnificent triumph for the American doctrine of religious liberty. The Democratic party was the only party in this State to incorporate in its platform a condemnation of such treasonable conspiracies as the A. P. A.

It is charmed also with the result in the San Francisco municipal campaign saying:

The results of the election sound the death knell of the A. P. A. four municipal and State politics. The almost universal and crushing defeat of those who were even remotely suspected of sympathy with its views is a lesson no candidate will ever forget.

The Monitor also does some figuring, from which it thinks the Catholics had 25,000 votes in San Francisco and the A. P. A. 6,000. Evidently one side or the other has been "played," as the boys say, in the election, and it hardly seems to have been the American Protective Association, for the Monitor, rather inconsistently, after the Budd editorial above quoted, remarks:

In California, Mr. Eatee was opposed by the A. P. A., it reports he true, because he told their representatives that the religion of his household was a question which concerned no one but themselves.

But Mr. Budd's ability as a politician was not confined to the religious controversy in this State; he was equally subtle in securing the Prohibition and liquor-dealing vote. His election is considered a great triumph by the temperance people because Mr. Eatee makes wine, and Mr. Budd was helped in his canvass by Mr. French, the Prohibitionist candidate for Governor. Yet, at the same time the strongest saloon wards in San Francisco, in Los Angeles, all over the State, gave Budd his big majorities. —Los Angeles Herald.

ASSAILING THE BALLOT LAW.

When the Australian Ballot Law was adopted in California it met with determined opposition. The bosses and political manipulators all fought it just as they did in this State.

Once it passed the Senate of this State and the Republican bosses killed it in the House. It has overthrown bossism in Nevada as it has overthrown it in California.

Regarding the effort to oppose the Australian Ballot in California the Sacramento Record Union says:

There is a surprisingly sudden tain of the party press. Has bossism found the law such a stumbling-block in its way that it is necessary to remove it in order that old-time political slavery may be re-established? Let the enemies of the system take counsel of wisdom and withhold their hands. The people are too strongly attached to the independent system of voting to now give it up. The law needs one or two modifications—no more. There should be a placing of tickets in parallel columns on the ballot, after the manner of the Indiana method; there should be liberty to choose clerks of election boards irrespective of residence, so long as it is in the county. With these changes, and some needed improvements in the tally sheet ruling and numbering, the reform law will be about as near perfect as is possible to human institutions. Of course, when the perfected voting machine is brought out, it may render ballot sheets wholly superfluous. The machine cannot make a mistake; the voter sometimes does with the rubber-tipped stamp.

CUR WITNESSES.

In a recent divorce case in San Francisco a number of witnesses went on the stand and swore that they had been criminally intimate with a woman in the case.

They afterward admitted that their testifying was all false.

These miserable creatures have not yet been tried for perjury and are still walking the streets.

It is a rule of law in many sections of the country that the oath of a woman of notoriously lewd character must be supported by corroborative evidence before it can be accepted in court.

There ought to be a rule of law that the oath of any man who will swear away a woman's character should not be received. Added to this should be a penalty of ten years in the penitentiary for any such miserable cur of a witness. As a rule such witnesses lie for money and they are a good deal lower in the social scale than prostitutes upon whose testimony the law looks with such suspicion.

In a society journal of San Francisco we read the following:

Two decidedly swagging young women from Washington are being entertained by Mr. and Mrs. ——. They are the Misses —, daughters of General —, of the National Capital, and are prepared for an enjoyable time on the Coast. Already have the attractions of Del Monte been home in upon them, and I believe they are to be introduced to Society in general in the next few weeks. Both are tall maidens and have a repertoire of exceedingly smart gowns which their time figures show off to advantage.

The columns of that journal of the upper peanuts are filled with just such slush. Is it any wonder that Society, "as she is writ" by these slushers, disgusts people of common sense.
